

Anna Satra Prakalpa(arrangement of meal at noon)

One of the best practices of this college is to run the Anna Satra Prakalpa(arrangement of meal at noon) for three years consecutively. This project has been undertaken for students coming from needy families. One day one girl student of 1st year Arts one day came to the Principal's chamber for a scholarship. On being asked why she could not attend the classes regularly, a shocking revelation surprised the Principal .In her house there is no provision of meal before the college hours and when the meal is served, college hour would be over. The Principal took initiative to arrange something for her so that she could attend the classes regularly. When the fact is disclosed , several other students ,living in abject poverty , broke their silence and shaking off their initial hesitation revealed the plight of their life. Families of many students could not afford bus-fare for their daughters regularly , many students pass the day in the college by simply taking tea and bread in the canteen. Such pathetic stories moved the G.B., the teachers, non-teaching staff and members of the students' union. All of them came forward to support the Principal 's proposal to run Anna Satra Prakalpa (arrangement of meal at noon) to the needy students. This project is enormously beneficial to those students who are lagging behind only because they are financially backward. We take pride to announce the amazing news that this innovative programme has earned appreciation from different corners and so far we conduct it successfully with the fund raised by the donation of the President, Principal, teaching and non-teaching staff and other benevolent persons. All progressive-minded, kind-hearted people including the ex-students of this college have come forward to contribute generously to this torch-bearing project.

Presently at a time 100 needy students are provided meal everyday. They are provided meal on all working days and free of cost. The entire amount is borne by a fund dedicated for this purpose. This arrangement helps the needy students to focus their mind to their studies.

A number of teaching and non-teaching staff members take the responsibility to run this project successfully.
